ABSTRACT

Network analyzers (NAs) monitor respectively corresponding communication lines through which Voice over Internet Protocol (VOIP) data streams are transmitted. A network troubleshooting center (NTC) communicates with the NAs to provide quality of service statistics for data streams transmitted through the communication lines and associated with a respective telephone call.